

INTEREST WAXING WARM AND VOTES ROLL IN. HAWAII, MAUI AND KAUAI ARE BUSY TOO

FIRST COUNT OF BALLOTS WILL BE MADE FRIDAY

Bulletin's Alaska-Yukon Trips Attract Wide Interest And All Good Natured

This morning was the banner morning in the Bulletin's Seattle Exposition contest, and the contest man was kept busy issuing ballots on subscriptions and some new candidates called at the office and registered their names and asked for books in which to qualify them for the race for ballots.

The Alaska-Yukon trips have attracted more candidates and there has been more interest shown up to the present time than was evidenced in the Pacific States tour contest of two years ago, when the Bulletin paid the expenses of a group of young women to the mainland and showed them the time of their lives, which went down in the history of the islands; and the Bulletin never dreamed of again being able to excite so much interest, but if any one doubts the interest being shown in the present contest, all they have to do is to come to the Bulletin office and the books are always open to those desiring information regarding the plans in which the votes are issued and whether they are all bona fide contestants.

When the results of the first count, made on Friday, are published Saturday there will be surprises for all, and those who have not as yet called for books should do so at once and make a good showing on the first count of ballots.

Mail Orders
Subscribers sending in their payments by mail should always mention the name of the contestant whom they wish to vote for, and if they want the votes returned to them they should also make that request. Votes are absolutely not transferable and not good if defaced. All votes issued on subscriptions are good until the close of the contest, and those desiring to hold them in reserve may do so as long as they desire, but those withdrawing from the contest at any time can not in any way transfer their votes to some one else. Turn in your subscriptions now, and the votes will be issued for same, and then you may hold back the votes.

Outside Contestants
All contestants living in Maui, Hawaii, and Kauai should send in all their subscriptions on each mail and the votes will be issued and returned to the candidate, and they may hold back the votes until the end of the contest. It is always a good idea to hold back votes and only vote a few from time to time in order to show your friends that you are taking an interest and in this way you will not expose your hand and no one will know, save each contestant herself, what reserve her competitors have until the final count is made.

Subscription Blanks
Candidates should call on the Contest Manager at once and secure subscription blanks, and there are a number of things he would like to tell you. In regard to the best way of securing votes. Call at once at the Bulletin office.

3000-Free-Vote for Other

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Great Heart, who appears in the second part of John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," is President Roosevelt's favorite character in allegorical literature. "Pilgrim's Progress" itself the President considers one of the greatest books ever written, and Abraham Lincoln he deems the ideal Great Heart of public life.

This was revealed by the Rev. Duncan C. Milner, a retired Presbyterian minister, who received a letter from the President. The President's letter follows:

"My Dear Dr. Milner:—Yes, you are entirely right. But I had no idea that what I said was being repeated. Great Heart is my favorite character in allegorical literature—which, of course, is a branch of fiction, as you say—just as Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress' is to my mind one of the greatest books that was ever written; and I think that Abraham Lincoln is the Great Heart of public life.

"Sincerely yours,
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

"Why can't you settle up sometimes?" said the grocer, gruffly. "You are always short." "Yes," laughed the slow-paying customer, "something like your scales." And the grocer was so piqued he weighed out prunes for washing soda.

LITTLEFIELD HAS TO SMILE

At Gompers-Roosevelt Tilt—Taft And The South

"How is your friend, Samuel Gompers?"

"I haven't seen Mr. Gompers lately," replied the Hon. Charles E. Littlefield, the former Congressman from the Maine Second District, but now a resident of New York, to this query, and he smiled as he continued: "But I notice he did not accomplish much more this time than he did when he came down into Maine to defeat some candidates."

"One thing amused me considerably, and that was the break between President Roosevelt and Mr. Gompers. For a time the President and the other gentleman were hand in glove, and seemed to be two souls with but a single thought on labor politics. Perhaps I ought to thank Mr. Gompers for one thing—the very wide advertising he helped to give me. Very often now I have men make inquiries concerning the campaign which that active gentleman saw fit to wage against me in 1906."

Mr. Littlefield, who visited Augusta last week, talked very interestingly with a Boston Herald correspondent, upon national matters, among other things, saying: "I regard Mr. Taft as a very able man. He is an excellent lawyer. I believe his policy will be a conservative one. I have no idea that he will carry out the extreme line of action popularly known as the Rooseveltian policy. Mr. Taft is extremely interested, evidently, in the revision of the tariff, and, by the way, that is a matter, I notice, President Roosevelt said very little about in his message."

Mr. Littlefield heard Mr. Taft make his recent speech upon the southern question. "I was much interested," said he, "in what he said about the south abridging the qualifications of voters. He told them to 'Go ahead.' There was one thing, however, connected with this matter which was not mentioned. The second section of the 14th amendment to the Constitution says: 'Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for a President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of the State or the members of the Legislature thereof is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such States 21 years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridge except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens, 21 years old, in such State.'

"Let us say that the population of the South is half negro," said Mr. Littlefield, to illustrate his point. "Suppose the right of that class to vote should be denied. The representation which the South would then have in Congress would be cut down 50 per cent. In Maine we have an educational qualification which, if enforced strictly, might cut down our representation. Maine will lose one Representative anyway when the next apportionment is made."

When asked if he intended to leave Maine permanently, Mr. Littlefield said: "I had to become a citizen of New York in order to be admitted to the bar there, but have retained my home in Rockland and expect to visit the State often. I shall no doubt spend my summers at my old home."

"There is one thing I want to tell you," he continued: "It has been stated that in the last Congressional campaign in Maine, Mr. Swaney, the Republican candidate for Congress, wrote me, extending an invitation to take part in the campaign. If such question, 'I was much interested,' a letter was written, I never received it."
